

Summary of the discipline
"Protection of Vulnerable Categories of Persons in International Law"

2nd year 4th semester
Level of higher education – Bachelor
Specialty 293 International Law
Number of credits – 5
Total hours – 150

The program of the discipline "Protection of Vulnerable Categories of Persons in International Law" is drawn up in accordance with the educational and professional program of preparation of the bachelor, subject area 29 International relations, specialty 293 International Law.

The purpose of the discipline: mastering certain instruments in the sphere of protection of vulnerable persons in international law, specifying features of protection of vulnerable groups, getting acquainted with international legal grounds for the protection of vulnerable groups, international instruments of protection of vulnerable groups.

Description of the discipline: International legal regulation of the concept of "vulnerable groups". International legal protection of women as a vulnerable group. International legal protection of rights of children as a vulnerable group. Protection of children's rights in armed conflict. Protection of the rights of refugees and internally displaced persons in international law. Protection of the rights of migrant workers in international law. International legal protection of the rights of persons with disabilities. Protection of the rights of older persons in international law. International legal protection of victims of war as a vulnerable group. International legal safeguards for the protection of national minorities and indigenous peoples. Protection of vulnerable groups in international criminal proceedings.

Form of final control: credit test.