

Summary of the subject
“European standards of local self-government and EU regional policy”

1st year 2 semester
Level of higher education - Master's
Specialty 293 International Law
CNumber of credits - 5
Total number of hours - 150

The program of the discipline is drawn up in accordance with the educational and professional program of master's degree in International Relations, specialty 293 International Law.

The purpose of teaching the discipline is to train specialists with high legal awareness and legal culture, possessing the necessary knowledge of local government as a form of public authority, which is part of the EU legal system, which determines the specifics of European governance and territorial organization of power within this integration supranational entity, to independently navigate modern legal relations in the field of municipal human rights, the powers of bodies and officials of local governments.

Description of the course: Legal dimension of European governance. Local self-government in the multilevel system of EU governance. European standards of local self-government. Theories of regionalism in modern political and legal discourses. Regionalization and regionalism: basic concepts and typology. Current trends in regionalization and their role in European integration processes. European regionalism in the context of the development of the European Union. EU regional policy. Systems and models of local self-government in EU countries. Implementation of the EU regional policy in the process of reforming the governance systems of the Member States. Regionalization in the context of “Europeanization” of Ukraine.

Final control in the form of a test.